

Marcus D. Jackson, Ed.D.

Dr. Marcus Jackson is in his 18th year of education. He has served as a teacher, assistant principal, and administrator in elementary, middle, high school, and college professor. His passion for teaching and learning, coupled with a vision for developing a community of leaders, has procured a culture of excellence and high standards for learning amid a positive school culture for students and staff.

He received his Bachelor's in Management, Bachelor's in Elementary Education, Master's in Educational Supervision and Administration, and Doctorate in Educational Leadership and Supervision. He has written several articles for various publications and is also an author of six award-winning books. He has received several awards for his leadership, including the Pinnacle Exemplar Leadership Award, Community Outreach Award, Principal of the Year, Teacher of the Year, Early Leader in Education Award, and many more.

He has served as the Chief Academic Officer, Chief of Secondary Schools, and Chief of Student Services for Lancaster Independent School District. He believes in the power of collaboration, continuous learning, hard work, celebrating progress, and ensuring that every child receives a world-class education.